

Inheritance dispute specialists

Disputes over inheritance often occur between family members following the death of a loved one, and these disagreements can make an already difficult situation even harder to deal with.

IDR Law specialise in helping families reach a resolution during these difficult and sensitive disputes.

If you are unhappy with your share of inheritance, or there is a disagreement between beneficiaries and executors, we can provide the expertise and experience to help you reach a resolution.

Contesting a will

In the UK, people are free to leave their money and possessions to whoever they choose, but when families disagree over the inheritance, it can be possible to change or dispute the current arrangements.

If you find yourself in any of these situations, we may be able to help.

- You were left out of the will or received less than expected
- The will was improperly written or signed
- You are unhappy with the handling of the estate
- The will doesn't reflect the deceased persons wishes
- There is no will
- If you were relying on inheritance for financial support
- You were promised inheritance that hasn't materialised
- A claim has been made against you which you need to defend

The first step in reaching a resolution is establishing whether you have the legal right to raise a dispute. This is where IDR Law can help.
